Remember in Prayer: Continued prayers for Benji Ortman whose clinical trial was unsuccessful, and who is now doing 10 rounds of radiation in Indianapolis to hopefully shrink the tumors and alleviate symptoms; for parishioner Joseph Diekhoff, who continues to improve as he begins his post-op therapy; for Rosemary Albright who struggles with leukemia, and has had an unsuccessful clinical trial, now seeks additional options; Dan Knoche, brother of Sister Val, who was recently diagnosed with late stage tonsil cancer, too late to seek viable treatment options; Dennis DiGiusto, Rylie Bennett, and all those for whom we have promised to pray. When we've had a hard day, and life is frustrating, when the world seems up side down, take a step back and remember that it really could be worse!

Speaking of worse – The state of Indiana is struggling too. Our COVID numbers are on the rise. In fact, confirmed cases, deaths and hospitalizations are all up higher than they were back in January before the vaccine became available. 99.9 % of all new cases are unvaccinated individuals, including many children. Pray for our children. While the state has 100 pediatric beds, we have 156 pediatric patients. The healthcare providers are swamped! Pray for a safe vaccine for children, and please help to protect all vulnerable people by getting vaccinated and stopping the spread.

Please see the bulletin insert today, a briefing from our “chief catechist,” Archbishop Charles C. Thompson, concerning the Catholic Church’s stance on vaccination. Pope Francis has made a clear statement, and now Archbishop Thompson is reiterating it. We cannot use “ethics, faith or morals” as an excuse for not taking advantage of a viable option to stop the spread of this deadly disease. Nothing in our faith, prohibits, limits, or stands in the way of taking this step toward love of our neighbor. We are strongly encouraged, unless a physician advises otherwise for personal health reasons, to step up and get ourselves vaccinated to protect ourselves, and one another.

Dates to Remember:

September 1 – Catechists Meeting 7:00 pm in the school hall.

September 2 – Buildings & Grounds Committee in school hall, 7:00 pm

September 5 – Mission Appeal Sunday.

September 19 – Catechetical Sunday Our Catechists and Classroom aides will be commissioned.

Mission Appeal: On the weekend of September 4/5, next weekend, Fr. Paul M. Gins, O.S.M. of the Order of Friar Servants of Mary (Servites)-U.S.A. Province, will be here to celebrate Mass and present to us about their missionary work in KwaZulu-Natal, Republic of South Africa. Founded in the 13th century in Florence, Italy, the Servites are a mendicant order currently serving all over the world.

The U.S. Province is responsible for the missions in KwaZulu-Natal. The main task today continues to be the proclamation of this quite strong and participation in the liturgy and the work of the church is very good. Ministries include education, primary health care centers, funding to improve the water system to root out malaria, digging wells in areas that do not have clean water, building homes for the very poor, and the formation of young Zulu seminarians. In 2019 two Zulu men were ordained Servite priests.

The missionaries need our prayers and material help to carry on these ministries. Thank you in advance for your prayers and financial assistance.

Rosary for the parish, Monday mornings at 10:30. Again will be outside. All are welcome.

Update of the New Sound System: Yes, as you can see by taking a look around, the new sound system is partially installed. The two men worked hard and accomplished a lot. But it is not yet operational. Fortunately, for this week, the old system is still in place. By next weekend that could all change. Pray that all missing components come in. And pray that installation is complete in the near future. The Church will be closed again, beginning Monday morning, to allow for the installation process to continue. And we will be back in Church again next weekend! Following the completion of the installation process, Brad Douglas, of Designed Sound & Video (Melody Mart) of Greensburg, will be with us to teach all of us,

Father, lectors, musicians, how best to adjust to the system and will make all of the adjustments as needed. Please be patient with us during this transition process.

The Finance Committee had an emergency meeting on Monday evening to discuss the painting proposal. Even as the final quote came in from the Painting Company, and then the scaffolding charge was added to the cost, we realized we were over budget before we could even begin. The committee had approved, in March, sufficient funding for the project as we could foresee it. As COVID began to impact our financial picture, questions arose. We had not planned on the scaffolding charge for the sanctuary area. Without that added charge we would still be within our parameters. The committee looked at the annual financial report, the end of month report, the savings accounts, the projected 2021 -2022 budget, the proceeds from the raffle, and the “projected proceeds” from the Auction, and tried to discern how much risk we were able to take. We also looked at the rate of giving over the past five years, and the projected maintenance for the coming year. Knowing that the need is increasing for this repair work, and knowing that the costs will continue to climb, the committee decided to trust in the continued financial support of our generous donors, and once again approve the painting project, knowing that we are already needing to borrow from savings to complete it. “The repair the Church” fund is slowly growing, but our cost out-weighs it. We are counting on another “good crop year” and continued generous parishioner support to make it all happen. We may need additional fund raising as the year progresses.

Armed with that decision and support, I approached the Archdiocese this week to complete the contract negotiation and by Friday afternoon we officially finalized the deal. The painters have staff lined up and ready to go. They hope to begin work on September 8th. They confirmed today that they will need a minimum of eight weeks, maybe more, depending on the impact of COVID as we proceed. We plan to celebrate our Sunday Liturgy in the church next weekend again, and then move our Sunday celebrations to the school hall until the painting project is complete. Our new goal is to be moved back into our refurbished space by Thanksgiving. If it happens sooner we will rejoice!

In the meantime, all parish gatherings are impacted by the shifting of needs for space. Once again, I ask for your patience and understanding as we navigate the next few months. After next Sunday, the church space will be closed for the duration.

Concerning Religious Ed, vaccines and masks are not currently required. We continue to follow the protocols of the South Decatur School System. The school systems are subject to change as conditions in out county change. If changes happen we will communicate it by way of the REMIND texting system. Please sign on if you have children in our program. And please sign on as parishioners to stay updated. But if you are sick, please stay at home.

St. Catherine of Siena, Enochsburg campus, will host their annual Church Picnic on Sunday September 5, 2021, the Sunday of Labor Day Weekend.

St. Anthony, Morris, will host their annual Church Picnic on Monday, Labor Day, as is their tradition.

And Holy Family, Oldenburg, is scheduled for October 3. All parishes offer Fried Chicken dinners, mock turtle soup, games and raffles. Please support them as they support us! Please see bulletin board for flyers.

Note from the Archdiocese this week: Face masks are strongly encouraged at liturgical celebrations. See flyer.

ARCHDIOCESE OF INDIANAPOLIS

The Church in Central and Southern Indiana

Leadership Briefing

By Archbishop Charles C. Thompson

Getting vaccinated is morally acceptable, an “act of love.”

In recent weeks, because of the resurgence of COVID-19 and variants of this disease, certain government agencies and other institutions and employers are requiring vaccination for their workers, but allowing for a “religious exemption” in certain circumstances, for those who choose not to receive it.

This has created confusion and concern among religious people, including some Catholics, who wonder whether there is a valid religious or moral argument against being vaccinated. Some Catholics in different parts of our country have asked about obtaining a letter from their pastor that would somehow serve in granting this exemption when needed. Because of this confusion, it is important to make some appropriate clarifications.

Late last year, the Vatican Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith published a “Note on the Morality of Using Some Anti-COVID-19 Vaccines” (December 21, 2020), which effectively articulates the position of the Catholic Church on the morality of vaccinations in the current global crisis.

The Vatican document makes the Catholic Church’s position clear. Because of the gravity of the threat posed by COVID-19, and the absence of alternative means of prevention, vaccines designed to protect us from this deadly disease are not only morally acceptable, they are strongly encouraged.

Pope Francis has taken this a step further. In a recent statement, the Holy Father said:

Being vaccinated with vaccines authorized by the competent authorities is an act of love. And contributing to ensure the majority of people are vaccinated is an act of love. Love for oneself, love for one's family and friends, love for all people. Love is also social and political, there is social love and political love; it is universal, always overflowing with small gestures of personal charity capable of transforming and improving societies (cf. Laudato si', no. 231, cf. Fratelli tutti, 184).

Getting vaccinated is not only a morally acceptable option for Catholics, and all people who care about the common good, it is an act of love.

As always, individual medical decisions need to be made in consultation with a physician who has the training and expertise to assess what is best for each person. With this in mind, it is important for Catholics to seek out doctors and healthcare professionals who have a proper understanding of the human person and respect the Catholic Faith and moral teaching. When dealing with one's personal health and well-being, it is also of utmost importance that this be done with a deep awareness and concern for the common good, realizing that the state of one's health is necessarily related to the health of others.

Every individual has the right to determine—on the basis of qualified medical opinions and a fully formed conscience—whether or not to be vaccinated. However, if a person chooses in conscience not to receive a vaccine, it is incumbent upon him or her to take the necessary precautions to protect others by observing whatever protocols are deemed necessary by health officials to do what can be done to prevent the spread of the virus, especially to those who are most vulnerable.

In response to local media inquiries, on Wednesday, August 18, I issued the following public statement:

Archbishop Thompson has supported the position of Pope Francis and the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops that getting vaccinated against COVID-19 is an act of charity that serves the common good to end the world-wide suffering and death the pandemic is causing. Pope Francis just today said that getting vaccinated is morally acceptable and is an “act of love.” Although some Catholics may personally be opposed to getting vaccinated, a religious exemption based on Church teaching is not warranted in this particular situation.

All Catholics in southern and central Indiana are strongly encouraged to prayerfully consider the best ways to protect themselves, their families and all with whom they come in contact against this highly contagious, deadly disease. For most, this will mean getting vaccinated.

Let's all pray that by the grace of God improved and morally sound medical solutions will bring this global crisis to an end. Let's ask that the Holy Spirit will bring healing and strength to all, especially to the sick and vulnerable among us. May our Blessed Mother Mary, Health of the Sick, intercede for all of us so that we can receive the healing power of her Divine Son, Jesus.

CONGREGATION FOR THE DOCTRINE OF THE FAITH

Note on the morality of using some anti-Covid-19 vaccines

The question of the use of vaccines, in general, is often at the center of controversy in the forum of public opinion. In recent months, this Congregation has received several requests for guidance regarding the use of vaccines against the SARS-CoV-2 virus that causes Covid-19, which, in the course of research and production, employed cell lines drawn from tissue obtained from two abortions that occurred in the last century. At the same time, diverse and sometimes conflicting pronouncements in the mass media by bishops, Catholic associations, and experts have raised questions about the morality of the use of these vaccines.

There is already an important pronouncement of the Pontifical Academy for Life on this issue, entitled "Moral reflections on vaccines prepared from cells derived from aborted human fetuses" (5 June 2005). Further, this Congregation expressed itself on the matter with the Instruction Dignitas Personae (September 8, 2008, cf. nn. 34 and 35). In 2017, the Pontifical Academy for Life returned to the topic with a Note. These documents already offer some general directive criteria.

Since the first vaccines against Covid-19 are already available for distribution and administration in various countries, this Congregation desires to offer some indications for clarification of this matter. We do not intend to judge the safety and efficacy of these vaccines, although ethically relevant and necessary, as this evaluation is the responsibility of biomedical researchers and drug agencies. Here, our objective is only to consider the moral aspects of the use of the vaccines against Covid-19 that have been developed from cell lines derived from tissues obtained from two fetuses that were not spontaneously aborted.

1. As the Instruction Dignitas Personae states, in cases where cells from aborted fetuses are employed to create cell lines for use in scientific research, "there exist differing degrees of responsibility"^[1] of cooperation in evil. For example, "in organizations where cell lines of illicit origin are being utilized, the responsibility of those who make the decision to use them is not the same as that of those who have no voice in such a decision”.^[2]

2. In this sense, when ethically irreproachable Covid-19 vaccines are not available (e.g. in countries where vaccines without ethical problems are not made available to physicians and patients, or where their distribution is more difficult due to special storage and transport conditions, or when various types of vaccines are distributed in the same country but health authorities do not allow citizens to choose the vaccine with which to be inoculated) it is morally acceptable to receive Covid-19 vaccines that have used cell lines from aborted fetuses in their research and production process.
3. The fundamental reason for considering the use of these vaccines morally licit is that the kind of cooperation in evil (passive material cooperation) in the procured abortion from which these cell lines originate is, on the part of those making use of the resulting vaccines, remote. The moral duty to avoid such passive material cooperation is not obligatory if there is a grave danger, such as the otherwise uncontrollable spread of a serious pathological agent^[3]—in this case, the pandemic spread of the SARS-CoV-2 virus that causes Covid-19. It must therefore be considered that, in such a case, all vaccinations recognized as clinically safe and effective can be used in good conscience with the certain knowledge that the use of such vaccines does not constitute formal cooperation with the abortion from which the cells used in production of the vaccines derive. It should be emphasized, however, that the morally licit use of these types of vaccines, in the particular conditions that make it so, does not in itself constitute a legitimation, even indirect, of the practice of abortion, and necessarily assumes the opposition to this practice by those who make use of these vaccines.
4. In fact, the licit use of such vaccines does not and should not in any way imply that there is a moral endorsement of the use of cell lines proceeding from aborted fetuses.^[4] Both pharmaceutical companies and governmental health agencies are therefore encouraged to produce, approve, distribute and offer ethically acceptable vaccines that do not create problems of conscience for either health care providers or the people to be vaccinated.
5. At the same time, practical reason makes evident that vaccination is not, as a rule, a moral obligation and that, therefore, it must be voluntary. In any case, from the ethical point of view, the morality of vaccination depends not only on the duty to protect one's own health, but also on the duty to pursue the common good. In the absence of other means to stop or even prevent the epidemic, the common good may recommend vaccination, especially to protect the weakest and most exposed. Those who, however, for reasons of conscience, refuse vaccines produced with cell lines from aborted fetuses, must do their utmost to avoid, by other prophylactic means and appropriate behavior, becoming vehicles for the transmission of the infectious agent. In particular, they must avoid any risk to the health of those who cannot be vaccinated for medical or other reasons, and who are the most vulnerable.

6. Finally, there is also a moral imperative for the pharmaceutical industry, governments and international organizations to ensure that vaccines, which are effective and safe from a medical point of view, as well as ethically acceptable, are also accessible to the poorest countries in a manner that is not costly for them. The lack of access to vaccines, otherwise, would become another sign of discrimination and injustice that condemns poor countries to continue living in health, economic and social poverty.[5]

The Sovereign Pontiff Francis, at the Audience granted to the undersigned Prefect of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, on 17 December 2020, examined the present Note and ordered its publication.

A Message from Pope Francis: Words of Challenge and Hope

In a brotherly spirit, I join in this message of hope for a brighter future. Thanks to God and to the work of many, we now have vaccines to protect us from COVID-19. They grant us the hope of ending the pandemic, but only if they are available to all and if we work together.

Being vaccinated with vaccines authorised by the competent authorities is an act of love. And contributing to ensure the majority of people are vaccinated is an act of love. Love for oneself, love for one's family and friends, love for all people. Love is also social and political, there is social love and political love; it is universal, always overflowing with small gestures of personal charity capable of transforming and improving societies (cf. Laudato si', no. 231, cf. Fratelli tutti, 184).

Vaccination is a simple but profound way of promoting the common good and caring for each other, especially the most vulnerable. I pray to God that everyone may contribute their own small grain of sand, their own small gesture of love; no matter how small, love is always great. Contribute with these small gestures for a better future.

God bless you, and thank you.

(VIDEO MESSAGE OF POPE FRANCIS TO THE PEOPLE ON THE VACCINATION CAMPAIGN AGAINST COVID-19)

My Prayer for You

Heavenly Father, you send your Holy Spirit into our world to bring healing and hope to all, especially those who are most vulnerable. May we always follow the example of your Divine Son and our brother, Jesus, in placing the needs of others before our own needs. May we have the courage, and the humility, to love one another as you love us. Amen.
