Reading reflections: 27th Sunday in Ordinary Time

When we are in real distress, we find out who our real friends are. They are the ones who stay with us even at the cost of sacrifice. They have time for us. They are the people we can trust and have confidence in.

Unfortunately, there are not many friends who can stand the test. However, Christians who maintain a living relationship with God are fortunate. They know by experience that God never disappoints those who have faith in him. Such a faith is a gift from God, which must grow with us when we mature. Like love, faith knows its doubts. There are dark periods, but never despair or desolation. Loneliness must be overcome by friendship and confidence in “the other.” If this “other” can be God as well, that person is happy.

LORD JESUS CHRIST
SON OF GOD
HAVE MERCY ON ME
A SINNER
